FUND COMMENTARY

Markets continued to rebound in November following better-than-expected inflation data in the US, bringing hope that the path of interest rates would be less hawkish than previously expected.

ASML and Straumann were among the positive contributors to portfolio performance over the month. ASML, a leading supplier for the semiconductor industry, hosted a Capital Market Event in which it upgraded its 2025 and 2030 expectations, despite ongoing short-term weakness in the semiconductor market. In the healthcare sector, dental implant specialist Straumann reported double-digit organic revenue growth in its third quarter and upgraded full-year guidance for mid-teens growth.

Among the detractors to performance, Teleperformance fell substantially following media reports that the Colombian government would be investigating its employment practices. Having reduced the position in September due to our increased awareness of risks concerning corporate governance and labour relations, we fully sold out of the position following the news. Shares in Roche also fell on a disappointing clinical read-out for its new Alzheimer treatment.
